NEWS SUMMARY.

—In New York cotton closed dull and lower; sales 185 bales. Middlings 84. No closing price for gold.

—In Liverpool cotton closed quiet; uplands 24½; Orleans 13d. Sales 8000 bales.

—According to Artemus Ward, there are two things for which we are never quite prepared, namely—twins.

—Punch does up the course of the French cable in a single hexameter, thus: "Straight from the Breast of the shore, it plunged in the Bosom of Ocean."

—Olive Lorrin describes the female bathers at Long Branch as "hanging themselves on the sand rope, looking exceedingly like newly-washed clothes on a windy Monday."

—Mr. A. B. Quantrell, of Washington, D. C., was announcing a bed with kerosene oil from a tin can, on Thursday, when the fluid ignited from a lighted match held near it. An explosion followed, terribly burning Mr. Q. and his daughter and setting fire to the apartment.

—Before Judge Dent accepted the nomination for Governor of Mississippi, he had a lengthy interview with the President, who advised him to accept the nomination, and expressed the hope that he would be elected. The President, at the same time, said that it was his desire to have a fair election in Mississippi and Texas, and if either General Ames or General Reynolds interfered there, with the would remove them immediately.

—The New York Sun (Radical) savagely remarks: "General Grant and his family are said to be coming from Washington to Long Branch on board the Tallapoosa. This is a national vessel, and its expenses are paid by the national treasury. By what right does the President convert it into a pleasure yacht for the use of himself and his relations? Is there any law of the United States which authorizes him to take a public steamer and employ it as a means of his personal amusement? And how does Secretary Robeson dare to pervert his official power by ordering the Tallapoosa on such an expedition? General Grant is paid a large salary, and besides he has been ordered to Long Branch in a steamboat, let him hire one of his own party from his own pocket like any honest citizen."

—The French Atlantic cable has been spliced to the shore end at the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon, and a message to the Emperor Napoleon, which he drafted and gave, enclosed in a sealed envelope, to the commander of the Great Eastern, has, it is reported, been sent over the wire to the Imperial Palace of the Tuileries, as a proof of the actual working condition of the line. The delay in splicing on July 12, it is reported, was owing to the shore end having slipped from the buoys, which made it necessary to grapple for the cable. The laying of the seven hundred miles from St. Pierre to Duxbury, Mass., was commenced on July 15. It is asserted that the messages received from Brest show that the French cable is superior to any other heretofore laid. The communication of Secretary of State Hamilton Fish to the Diplomatic Representatives of England and France, indicates that the United States Government does not intend to interfere with the laying of the cable, and that the company lays the wire subject to such regulations as Congress may hereafter make.

—Just as the journey across our continent has been made brief by the completion of the Pacific Railroad, a new enterprise has been undertaken to shorten the distance around it. Marshall O. Roberts, of New York, is at the head of a company incorporated by the Vermont Legislature and holding a grant from the Mexican Government, for the building of a railroad across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, the Atlantic terminus of the proposed railroad is Minatitlan, a river town twenty miles from the Gulf of Mexico, easily accessible to sea-going steamers at all tides, from which point it will run due south to the Pacific, making that water at the port of Venosa, one hundred and sixty-two miles distant. The construction of the road does not involve many difficulties, the extreme elevation being only 798 feet, and the substantial truss bridge required. Mr. Roberts has just signed a four-year bond of $100,000 for the construction of a carriage road and a telegraph line along the route within eighteen months. The railroad itself is to be commenced within two years and finished within three years more. The total amount of capital required for the undertaking is $3,000,000.

—The money in the New York Sub-Treasury has recently been counted by sixty-six expert accountants. The work commenced on the 20th ult., and continued eleven days. After the greenbacks, to the amount of over $300,000, had been twice counted, and the total had been found to tally exactly with the figures given by Mr. Van Dyck, the bags of gold and silver were attacked, the seals broken, the sewing ripped open, and the contents poured out on the iron floor. Then fifty small streams of metal, "though lost to sight to memory dear," flow in every direction from fifty pairs of hands, from one pile to another and back again, as one set of accountants took the other's place, and the merry chinking diversified the orderly confusion of the men's voices. Nearly 270,000,000 in gold and $300,000,000 in silver were thus handled and replaced in bags, sewed up and sealed. Then $3,000,000 in shining gold bars were weighed, counted and packed away, and on Saturday morning the tired accountants stood on their feet, stroked their backs, rubbed their eyes, folded their desters, and like the Arabs, noiselessly stole away. It was found that Uncle Samuel had in his coffers in New York one hundred and two millions seven hundred and twenty-seven thousand, six hundred and forty-eight dollars and twenty-nine cents.

—The "Avatar," as it is called, or aerial carriage, is a balloon, shaped like a cigar, both ends coming to a point. It is thirty-seven feet long, seven feet from top to bottom, and eight feet in width. Around the balloon is a light framework of wood and canvas, strongly riveted together and arched. Attached to this frame, and standing up as they approach the front of the carriage, are two wings, one on either side. They are each five feet wide and a little back of the centre of the carriage, and do not commonce to narrow down until they approach the front, where they come to a point. These wings are made of white cloth, fastened to a light framework, which is braced securely by wires. To the frame at the hind part of the carriage is attached a rudder or steering gear, which is exactly the shape of the paper used in pin darts, four vanes at right angles. This, when raised or lowered, elevates or depresses the head of the carriage when in motion; and when turned from side to side, guides the carriage as a rudder does a boat. At the centre and bottom of the balloon is an indentation or space left in the material of which it is built, in which the engine and machinery are placed on framework. The boiler and furnace are together only a little over a foot long, four inches wide and five or six inches in height. Steam is generated by spirit lamps. The cylinder is two inches in diameter and has three-inch stroke. The crank connects by means of cog-wheels, with tumbling rods which lead out to the propellers on either side of the carriage. The propellers are each two-bladed, four feet in diameter, and are placed in the framework of the wings. The boiler is made to carry eight pounds of steam. When not inflated the carriage weighs eighty-four pounds. The balloon has a capacity for thirteen hundred and sixty feet of gas. When inflated and ready for a flight, it is calculated to have the carriage weigh from four to ten pounds. Its first public trial at San Francisco, on the 4th instant, resulted in complete success.

The Chinese Labor Movement.

Worn out as are the planters of South Carolina by the uncertainty and costliness of free negro labor, it is not surprising that they should desire to avail themselves at once of the services of the Chinese, who in Cuba are paid but $4 a month, and in China but $20 a year. And the Chinese do not need Second Chop work for Second Chop pay. Men of their own race—Tye Kim Orr and Koopmanschap—who were at the Memphis Convention, say that they work faithfully and are easily managed, being patient, industrious, docile, tractable and obedient. They are temperate in their habits, whatever the Californians may say, and Koopmanschap, the great contractor, is of opinion that they can be had for five years, at ten or twelve dollars a month. If only half of this be true, the Chinese will be better and cheaper laborers for our low country than any that we now have, or can obtain outside of the Empires of the East. Economy and efficiency are knocking at our doors, and we confess that our earnest wish to open wide our gates is not tempered by any anxiety lest the Asiatic should affect injuriously our social or political system.

We all know that, as one of the consequences of the war, tens of thousands of fertile acres upon our seacoast lie idle, while every mark of former cultivation is rapidly hidden by rank vegetation. There is not labor enough of any kind to restore these deserted plantations to their old ripeness of production. The colored people, what with losses by disease, migration to the cities and towns, and the withdrawal of the women from the fields, are not strong enough to till properly the land now in cultivation. Nor is it a rebel misrepresentation to say that the colored man does not labor as zealously as he did before the war, and that nothing but active competition will drive him to keep faith with his employer and work fully up to the terms of his bargain. The labor that we need for the low country cannot come from Europe. The choice lies between Asiatic labor and African labor; and self-interest will naturally incline our people to encourage the introduction of the former, which is unlimited in quantity, is more intelligent, and will be more profitable than free negro labor.

The Chinamen have pigsties and almond eyes, and flattened faces and names studded with Angles and Eggs. But these little peculiarities will not set our people against them; for on their side is the power of money, the force of dollars and cents. As they will come in but small numbers at first, as they have so far shown no disposition to settle permanently in a foreign land, and as it would be many years before they could take sides upon any political question, we do not fear that they will influence unfavorably our political position. And, so far as their physical power goes, we have enough faith in the white race to believe that no number of Chinamen which we or our children may see in South Carolina will be able to drag down the white man to their level, or fasten upon Western civilization the superstitions of the East. They come to us to fill a vacant place, and they come in good time. They will make fertile miles of rich land which are now a dreary waste. They will make the State wealthy and strong. They may drive out the negro; but they can never drive out the white men of the South.

And, after all, this is no ethical question, but a matter of bread and meat, of living or dying. All other considerations will fade in the face of these. We might wait to see what the Chinese will do in Mississippi and Louisiana; but we have not a moment to lose in parleying and dreaming. The problem is solving itself while we sit idly by. Never did any movement take shape and form as rapidly as that of Chinese immigration to the South. In a few weeks the subject has assumed proportions so large as to give employment to hundreds of pens and to enter into the calculations of subtle politicians. The country was ripe there was no hope for the low lands of the South but in the Chinese, and they are assuredly coming. We say, let them come. We, at all events, have no doubts, no fears, and we hail the Chinese as the harbingers of fortune and prosperity to the whole southeast of South Carolina.

Behind the Times.

The Barnwell Sentinel is opposed to Chinese immigration; but it does not stop there. It says:

"What we object to is gangs, droves, armies of foreign barbarians. We would not object to an occasional immigrant from any country provided he was a man, because we could gradually assimilate such immigrants and make them part and parcel of ourselves. The meaning of this is clear enough. Our contemporary is hostile to all immigration, but does not object to an occasional immigrant, provided he be white. Irish, Germans and English are all lumped together, if not as foreign barbarians, at least as immigrants, who may be admitted occasionally, but must not come, as we should like to see them, in a strong and steady stream. The Sentinel is all wrong, when it sets up its back against anything but "occasional" white immigration. This is not the feeling of the State, and is not, we hope, the feeling of Barnwell County. At all events, we should like to try the experiment of sending a thousand white "foreign barbarians" to Blackville to-morrow morning.

Reviews.

THE STABLES GOWN AND OTHER POSTHUMOUS SELECTIONS. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. Charleston: Holmes' Book House.

It is not an easy matter to form a collection of short poems which are religious, not erotic in tone, and which shall be sufficiently attractive to both serious and superficial readers. This has been done in "The Stables Gown," where the names of Longfellow, Whittier, Sargency and Hemans, shine in the midst of their anonymous though not insignificant brethren. The book is beautifully printed on tinted paper, and is neatly bound. Price $1 75.

The State Penitentiary.

Our Columbia correspondent says that six convicts escaped from the State Penitentiary last week. Two escaped a week before, and Governor Scott has pardoned sixteen. In all, two dozen convicted felons have been let loose to prey upon the community. Who will say that Governor Scott does not deserve the gratitude of the Radical party?
